Pencil sharpening is time wasting and some members of Mr Browser's class have perfected this art. How he wishes he could sharpen their brains instead! This is a zany science fiction story suitably embellished with the witty drawings of Tony Ross. Mr Browser's wish is granted when one foggy morning the Brain Sharpeners arrive. Class 8 members are brainwashed to become the perfect students. Only Michael is aware that they are about to be kidnapped and deported to a new planet. The Headmaster is not convinced of Michael's story but eventually the class is saved. The disappearance of the H. M. is never explained but nobody seems too concerned! A satisfying read for children of ten years or so. Seventy-seven pages of excitement, well blended with humour.
