Fluff, a penguin, and Billy, a slightly smaller penguin, are great friends; they love to play. Fluff is the leader, who starts the games, but when Billy takes the initiative and throws a snowball at Fluff ? which hurts ? Fluff is offended, and the friends stop talking. Who is going to make the first move towards renewed friendship? Fluff gives in when he sees that Billy is upset, and they are soon having a tickling fest. A nicely turned parable about friends ? or perhaps siblings ? and forgiveness. The simple and highly integrated text matches nicely with the expressive pictures of the two penguins in all their antics.
