Truly sensational illustrations linked to a very clever story explain why this large-format picture book won the title 'Picture Book of the Year '89' in Australia. The story is just the sort young children tell themselves while playing ... all about wizards, white witches and terrible-tongued dragons. It delves into the world of the imagination and creates a wonderful impression of magic and adventure. Alongside the story run the pictures showing what's really happening ... the dragon is the family hound and Queen Drac, the warrior queen of Tirnol Two, is a little girl playing, with her brother, the Gremlin for the purposes of this adventure, in their garden. Very satisfying and full of invitations to talk and imagine. Highly recommended.
